

American Imperialism

Richard Lawrence

Edition 4

Introduction

This account of American Imperialism is an adapted version taken from a short story in my book 'The Dragon Project'. My historical research for the original 'Dragon' version was arduous to state the least and many readers may find it difficult to accept my analysis of American Imperialism.

I have used my own writings as well as sections of text covering historical and financial facts (in full and in part) from books and articles that I have researched and cross referenced.

Imperialism is a policy or ideology of extending a country's rule over foreign nations, often by military force or by gaining political and economic control of other areas. Imperialism has been common throughout recorded history, the earliest examples dating from the mid-third millennium BC. In recent times (since at least the 1870s), it has often been considered morally reprehensible and prohibited by international law.

Today in 2023 and thanks to the internet and its army of activists, we can all clearly see the imperialist ambitions of the United States of America (the U.S.) and their people, the Americans.

This Book is for Charity

This book has been written for charity and if you find it interesting, please consider a small donation to my charity of choice, 'The Sick Kids Friends Foundation' who support the Royal Hospital for Sick Children (RHSC) in Edinburgh which was the first children's hospital in Scotland. It was built on its present site in Sciennes Road, Edinburgh in 1895 and opened by HRH Princess Beatrice of York, the granddaughter of Queen Victoria.

The current patron is HRH Princess Beatrice of York, granddaughter of Queen Elizabeth II. Every year over 100,000 children pass through the doors of the hospital, ranging in age from just a few hours old to aged 16 in some specialities. The majority of the patients come from Edinburgh, the Lothians and Fife, but the hospital treats children from all over Scotland.

Acknowledgment

My sincere thanks to Roy Harrower who assisted me with proof reading, continuity and suggested editorial corrections.

Copyright Conditions

This article is in .pdf file format and is free for worldwide distribution by electronic means or hard copy download on the condition the copyright is maintained, whereby the article or any part of it cannot be used for commercial use without the owner's permission.

Richard Lawrence has asserted his right to be identified as the 'Author of this Work' in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988. First electronically published on the website: www.lawrencephotographic.com on the 30th June 2020.

If you could stand on a hillside in 683 BCE you would see the Amorites fleeing Babylon, that whore city, now a burning ruin. The red glow of the fire rising high in the night sky to cast its reflection on the waters of the Euphrates River. You would see the Assyrians slaughter the Amorites without quarter, for Babylon was a wicked city where richness had spawned greed, avarice and rampant moral degeneration which included unnatural sexual acts.

Sennacherib the King of Assyria, the Mesopotamian Kingdom, had driven his army against Babylon (near to modern day Bagdad in Iraq), sacked it, and looted the temples. Its destruction was complete and it was sweet revenge for the subjugation of Assyrian lands by the Amorite's leader, King Hammurabi in 1792 BCE. Those few Amorites who survived, were assimilated into Assyrian culture and religion. Sennacherib, paid a heavy price as the destruction of the temples of Babylon were seen by his sons and his peoples as the height of sacrilege. His sons assassinated him in his palace at Nineveh, the Assyrian capital city, situated in upper Mesopotamia on the eastern bank of the Tigris River (now part of Mosul in Iraq). That same year in 683 BCE, his youngest son Esarhaddon, became his heir and he rebuilt Babylon, proclaiming that the city had insulted the gods and he had been chosen to soothe their anger and their rage. He went on to capture Egypt and established the northern borders of Assyria as far as the Zagros Mountains in Persia (Iran) and as far south as Nubia (Sudan) with a west to east span of the Levant (Lebanon/Israel) through Anatolia (Turkey). Esarhaddon went on to provide the stability for advances in medicine, literacy, mathematics, astronomy, architecture, and the arts.

In 612 BCE, you could watch as Nineveh was sacked and burned by the Babylonians, Persians, Medes and Scythians, amongst many others in their coalition. So it was, that the Assyrian Empire was erased from history and the destruction of their cities was so complete that all trace of them is now gone. Nineveh lay undiscovered under the sands for two thousand years within the modern-day city of Mosul in northern Iraq, which in 2023 is now a ruin and under its rubble lies the bodies of hundreds of Iraqi citizens, blown to bits by American bombs.

The Assyrians were known for their ruthlessness and cruelty, a murderously vindictive regime supported by a massive and successful war machine. In their day, they were the most technically and doctrinally advanced and a model for future regimes. In the centuries ahead, the Persians, the Greeks, the Romans, Genghis Khan, the British Empire, the Japanese, the Ottoman Empire and Nazi Germany, would pale into insignificance. Now the Assyrian Empire had a 21st century regime that finally rivalled them in ruthlessness and cruelty, a murderously vindictive regime that was spawned on the 4th of July in 1776 when America declared its independence from Great Britain. This regime, the United States of America, first conquered all of its own lands by killing and enslaving the native Indian population in small reservations, without reservation. When gold was discovered in the Black Hills of Dakota in 1876, the American President turned a blind eye as the gold prospectors entered the Black Hills, the reservation of the Lakota Sioux. In 1889, the American government dismantled the Great Sioux Reservation, forcing the peoples on to smaller reservations west of the Missouri River. By 1900, the indigenous people of the United States were reduced from 10 million to just over 300 thousand. The Americans also used black slaves transported from Africa to work their fields to export cotton to the world. This regime saw itself as the 'light in the darkness of the world' and sought to convert the world to its politics and perceived democracy.

The generations of man have no sense of history; the common man in America was too occupied to fully understand the changes in his countries administration, such as its government foreign policy, its discourse for financial and military wars and its imperialist expansion plans, which one day, would take on a desire for global control. The Americans, who were a mongrel nation, were consumed by the loss of integrity and vocation which led them to avarice, mendacity and finally in the generations ahead, it would lead to their ultimate destruction.

In 1793, the Americans sided with the French during the hostilities between Britain and France by trading with the French. The British seized American ships, forcing America to stop supplying the French but by 1811, congressional war hawks from the southern and western American frontier states, desired war with Britain, the annexation of Canada and seizing Florida from Spain. In 1812, war was declared between America and Britain, and thereafter, the failed invasion of Canada by the Americans. In 1813, the American president issued a war tax and in congress, a core belief, was recognised, "war is the parent of armies; from these proceed debts and taxes; and armies, and debts, and taxes are the known instrument for bringing the many under the domination of the few." Following the defeat of Napoleon and France by the British on mainland Europe, the British were then able to strengthen their armies and naval fleets in the war against the Americans. In 1814 a peace treaty was signed, with America gaining some ground in Canada whilst the British gained some ground in America.

In 1821, Mexico gained independence from Spain and the lands of Texas to California. Mexico encouraged immigrant settlers from America to settle on cheap land in Texas. Immigrants were required to swear an oath of allegiance to Mexico. In 1827, America offered to purchase Texas and Mexico rejected the offer. In 1830, Mexico abolished slavery which impacted on the Texans ability to employ cheap labour. In 1832, Texas declared independence from Mexico and sowed the seeds for the Mexican invasion and 'The Battle of the Alamo' in 1836. The Mexicans were finally pushed back by a Texan Army under the command of Major General Sam Houston and Texas was annexed to America in 1845. That same year, America offered to purchase the disputed lands between the Nueces River and the Rio Grande river from Mexico. When that offer was rejected, U.S. troops moved into the disputed territory. The American/Mexican War ended in 1848 with Mexico ceding the northern territories of Alta California and Santa Fe de Nuevo México to the United States.

The cause of the American/Mexican War was also the reason for the American Civil War in 1861-65 which was the pressure placed on the Texans and the southern states by the northern states, to stop using slaves for cheap labour. The northern states of America used the excuse of abolishing black slavery to curtail the expansion of southern wealth and the creation of a powerhouse in the south which threatened to financially split America and so weaken the north. The south recognised the deceit and seceded from the union; in doing so, civil war was declared. The north won the war and sent in the 'carpet baggers' to loot the lands, businesses and wealth from the south in the 'Reconstruction Period'. The hatred of the north by the southern states would lie hidden and dormant, to rise again in the late 2030s.

In 1819, Spain controlled the southwestern United States of America; along the Florida coast and extending into the Mississippi valley. It was a major impediment to the territorial expansion of the United States. Spain, under pressure by American rebellious settlers, prompted by the U.S. government, agreed to cede Florida to United States. The focus changed to Spain's control of Cuba and in 1898, after many political and minor military infractions, driven by the Americans thirst for imperialist expansion and through providing aid to the Cuban guerrillas, Spain declared war on the United States of America. The Americans invaded Spain's island territories of Cuba, Porto Rico and other islands in the West Indies and the archipelago known as the Philippine Islands. The war ended in 1898 with a peace treaty signed by both parties in Paris whereby Spain ceded those territories to the United States of America.

On January 17, 1893, the island of Oahu endured a coup d'état against Queen Lili'uokalani by United States citizens residing in Honolulu. The American minister John L. Stevens called in the U.S. Marines to protect United States interests, and they came ashore at the request of the conspirators, an action that effectively reinforced the rebellion. The overthrow left the Queen imprisoned in 'Iolani Palace under house arrest. The Republic of Hawaii was declared in 1894 and the ultimate goal was the annexation of the islands to the United States, which occurred in 1898. The Americans had achieved their ultimate goal of a permanent naval base in the centre of the Pacific between America and Japan. It was called Pearl Harbour and situated in Hawaii.

The Americans continued down their path of imperialist colonialism and occupied Nicaragua from 1912 to 1933, when the American military forcefully intervened in various Latin American countries from 1898 to 1934. The formal occupation and the total disregard for the Nicaraguan sovereignty began in 1912, even though there were various other assaults by the Americans in Nicaragua throughout this period. The American modus operandi was always the same, sanction the financial accounts of the leaders and governments of a country, suppress its exports to strangle its growth, find an alternative leader to oppose the legitimate government, create divisions within their military and finally provide American military assistance (reputed to be advisors) to achieve regime change and assimilate the new government to the financial benefit of the American Corporate Elite.

In the 1939-1945 World War, the Americans were faced with losing thousands of their soldiers fighting the Japanese on their home soil. To avoid criticism at home, they decided to shorten the war by killing civilians and forcing Japan to capitulate. In what is now regarded as America's dishonourable conduct, they dropped atomic bombs on the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, killing over 214,000 civilians and levelling the buildings to dust. The World War also resulted in the deaths of over 5 million Jews of many nationalities, murdered by the Nazis in German concentration camps. This became known as the holocaust.

After the war, the Jews continued to 'hold the holocaust like a dagger of conscience' at the throats of the Christian Western Civilisation. The ancient Israelite had become the Hebrew to become known as the Jew and he moved back to Canaan (modern day Israel) the lower part of the Levant (Israel and Lebanon), the promised land. Following the bombing of the King David Hotel in Jerusalem (British Administrative Headquarters for Palestine) by the Jewish Irgun, a militant right-wing Zionist underground organization, and after subsequent terrorist attacks in Palestine, the Independent State of Israel was declared. This pivotal point in history, occurred in 1948 and was encouraged and sanctioned by the United States of America. In the era of the pharaohs the Hebrews entered Canaan from Egypt but on this occasion, they entered from every country in the world. In the following years, the Americans armed the Jews in Israel with advanced weapons but also armed the Sunni Muslims in Saudi Arabia and encouraged conflict in the Middle East, especially between Israel and the Shia Muslims of Iran.

So, it goes on, by the murderous and vindictive Americans, under the pretext of peace maker for the United Nations whilst seeking regime changes to suit their own political, financial and global ambitions. The Guatemalan Revolution in 1944 and 1951, brought popular leftist governments to power, but a United States-backed coup d'état in 1954 installed the military regime of Carlos Castillo Armas, who was followed by a series of conservative military dictators who were sympathetic to American goals in the region.

The Americans, in 1952 installed their puppet military dictator Fulgencio Batista y Zaldívar in Cuba. He was eventually thrown out, along with the American Corporations and even the Mafia by the revolutionary Fidel Castro, who became the Prime Minister of Cuba from 1959 to 2008 and created a socialist country which excelled in education and healthcare - even to this day. The Americans in 'The Bay of Pigs' incident attempted to overthrow Castro, but the landings on the beaches of Cuba, failed. Ever since the Americans have sanctioned and embargoed Cuba in attempts to regain control of the island.

Between 1946 and 1958, the United States of America tested 23 nuclear weapons at Bikini Atoll, in the Marshall Islands, an independent island country near the Equator in the Pacific Ocean. The test weapons produced a combined fission yield of 42.2 megatons of TNT in explosive power. To accommodate these tests, the inhabitants were moved off the island on the promise they could return home after the tests. In February 1946, the United States government forced the 167 Micronesian inhabitants of the atoll to temporarily relocate so that testing could begin on atomic bombs. King Juda agreed to the request, announcing that "we will go believing that everything is in the hands of God." Nine of the eleven family heads chose Rongerik as their new home. Navy Seabees helped them to disassemble their church and community house and prepare to relocate to their new home. On March 7, 1946, the residents gathered their belongings and building supplies. They were transported 125 mi (201 km) eastward on Navy landing craft 1108 and LST 861 to the uninhabited Rongerik Atoll, which was one-sixth the size of Bikini Atoll. No one lived on Rongerik because it had an inadequate water and food supply, and also due to traditional beliefs that the island was haunted by the Demon Girls of Ujae. The Navy left them with a few weeks of food and water which soon proved inadequate. Despite the promises made by authorities, these and further nuclear tests (Redwing in 1956 and Hardtack in 1958) rendered Bikini unfit for habitation, contaminating the soil and water, making subsistence farming and fishing too dangerous. A 2016 investigation found radiation levels on Bikini Atoll so high that they remained well above the established safety standard for human habitation.

The Americans, entered the 1950–1953 Korean War and later in the 1955–1975 Vietnam War by carpet bombing the lands and the people, whereby millions died and the northern infrastructures of those countries were decimated. Thanks to American disinformation and their subsequent invasion, the Vietnam War cost the lives of 60,000 Americans and four million Vietnamese. The US Military also dropped ‘Agent Orange’ on the Vietnamese, a concoction of deadly herbicide chemicals, whereby up to four million people suffered severe health problems with over one million permanently disabled.

Operation Menu was a covert United States tactical bombing campaign conducted in eastern Cambodia from 18th March 1969 until 26th May 1970 during the Vietnam War. An official United States Air Force record of U.S. bombing activity over Indochina from 1964 to 1973 was declassified by U.S. President Bill Clinton in 2000. The report gives details of the extent of the bombing of Cambodia, as well as of Laos and Vietnam. According to the data, the Air Force began bombing the rural regions of Cambodia along its South Vietnam border in 1965 under the Johnson administration; this was four years earlier than previously believed. Operation Freedom Deal immediately followed Operation Menu. Under Freedom Deal, B-52 bombing was expanded to a much larger area of Cambodia and continued until August 1973. Estimates of Cambodian deaths resulting from the 1969-75 war range from 500,000 killed to a credible 1 million excess deaths. Given that the Cambodian population was an estimated 6 or 7 million in the period of the Second Indochina War, this gives us a figure of between 1 in 6 and 1 in 14 of all Cambodians killed. Thereafter, Cambodia disintegrated into civil war - the US had deliberately brought the Cambodian population to the brink of starvation – destroying farmland and driving peasants off the land. Perhaps 500,000 or more died of starvation. Hundreds of thousands were executed for political or ideological reasons, murdered by the Khmer Rouge who the US had largely brought into existence. American unexploded bombs continue to be a particular danger and a massive cluster bomb problem haunts the east of the country. By 2023, over 64,000 people have been killed or injured by explosive items since 1979, and there is still an average of one death or injury every week in Cambodia.

Mohammad Reza Pahlavi also known as Mohammad Reza Shah was the last Shah (King) of Iran from 16 September 1941 until his overthrow in the Iranian Revolution on 11 February 1979. Due to his status as the last Shah of Iran, he is often known as simply the Shah. His government was very sympathetic to the corporate ambitions of the U.S. and when he was overthrown, the Americans were effectively thrown out of Iran. Ever since they have been mortal enemies and today in 2023, Iran is heavily sanctioned by the U.S. and struggles to financially sustain itself. The Americans seek regime change in Iran and have undertaken to assassinate Iranian military leaders, at every opportunity.

In 1980, the Americans provided Iraq and its leader Saddam Hussein with weapons and aid during the 1980-1988 Iraq-Iran war as they used him to attempt a regime change in Iran; and yet in 2003 they invaded Iraq to affect regime change. In 1983 the Americans invaded Grenada to interfere in the civil war for their preferred regime change. The operation was called Operation Urgent Fury. The United States invaded Panama in 1989, in an attempt to overthrow the regime and the leader, Manuel Noriega. The regime was promptly crushed, forcing the dictator to seek asylum with the Vatican in Panama City. In the 1990-1991 war between Iraq and Kuwait, the Americans provided air support for Kuwait, drove out the Iraq army and thereafter, setup 8 military bases in Kuwait. This pattern for world dominance under the pretext of peacemaker and policeman was to continue as base after military base was setup across the world.

The populace of the world stood by and protested but allowed the Americans to progress. The United States lost all morality at home over domestic and foreign issues and as a result, they descended into debt and decadence. In the 1998-1999 Kosovo War, the Americans, once again assumed the mantle of peacemaker and dropped bombs on the civilian populace of Yugoslavia as it sank deeper into civil war between the Albanians and the Serbs. In 2001, they invaded Afghanistan and interfered in the Afghanistan 1996-2001 civil war whilst setting up a military base. In 2003, the American military entered Bagdad, over the ancient ruins of Babylon, to kill and maim the civilian population and to oust the leader, Saddam Hussein, on a pretext that Iraq possessed weapons of mass destruction. The sheer hypocrisy of the Americans was breath taking as Hussein was their ally in the 1980s and the U.S. armed him. Hussein was eventually hung to prevent any form of counter insurgency by his tribal affiliates.

In 2011, they entered Libya and the country descended into civil war with the leader, Muammar Mohammed Abu Minyar Gaddafi being killed and the country left in ruins. In the 2011-2017 Syrian civil war, the Americans first sent aid to the Syrian 'Sunni Muslim' rebels sponsored by Saudi Arabia, who were attempting to overthrow the government of Bashar Hafez al-Assad to affect a regime change and later they supplied weapons to the rebels and provided air support. The Russians aided al-Assad's government to protect its sovereignty and the Americans became isolated in the northern part of Syria but still maintained ambitions to overthrow Bashar Hafez al-Assad. In 2017, you could see the massive air power and the bombs of the American military destroy and level the city of Mosul in Iraq; leaving thousands of the civilians lying dead and rotting within the rubble of the ruined city and its ancient counterpart, Nineveh, the capital city of the Assyrian Empire.

The Americans, like the Assyrians made war against those peoples who opposed their way of thinking. They were ferocious and saw no problem in breaching a country's sovereignty, destroying large swathes of foreign lands, including the peoples thereon. By 2017, the Americans had expanded their military might and built over 800 military bases and positioned them around the world to contain their proxy wars within those areas, in particular the Balkans to contain Russia and in the South China region to contain China. Incredibly as the Japanese were no longer a military threat, they maintained their sovereignty but were assimilated by America and recognised as an ally. This was the same technique the Assyrian and Roman Empires had used on their enemies.

Now the Americans desired regime changes in North Korea and Iran under the pretext that these countries have and are developing nuclear weapons that can be used to attack the cities of the United States. The Americans were held back from invasion by the threat of retaliation to their military bases and naval fleets on and around the South China Seas Peninsula and in the Middle East, in the sure knowledge that China and Russia would come to the assistance of North Korea, Syria and Iran. In 2014, President Vladimir Putin of Russia and President Xi Jinping of China signed the 'special relationship' the Strategic Partnership Agreement which was etched in stone. In effect they were allies and would come to each other's aid in the event of either suffering military oppression.

Currently, in 2023, the U.S. is engaged in attempting the overthrow of the leaders of many sovereign states, including Iran, Venezuela, Syria, Cuba, North Korea, Belarus, Russia and even China. The U.S. president is attempting to crush the governments of those countries through sanctions, embargos and by financially limiting their growth. It's a dangerous game because the U.S. desire for regime change is geared to feed their corporate world ambitions, especially in relation to oil and gas. What makes that approach different today, is that despite it being an undercover 'covert' action by the U.S. for centuries, it is now entirely visible to the rest of the world. America, especially seeks regime change in Cuba and Venezuela as both are socialist sovereign states. These countries have been heavily sanctioned financially and have suffered various military insurgents backed by the U.S. to overthrow their leaders and for the Americans to insert their own puppet governments, that will be sympathetic to American corporations, especially in Venezuela to take control of the enormous oil reserves. In an incredible hypocrisy, the American claim that the leaders of Cuba and Venezuela are the cause of the financial crippling of those countries, especially in Venezuela which is blocked by the U.S. from exporting its oil and has to import oil from Iran. The western elite in positions of power, and their media, have decided to ignore, and even cover up, the advance of America's illegal imperialist ambitions, and its attempts to crush and dominate the leaders of other countries, especially those with socialist governments.

In 2014, during the 'Maiden Revolution' in Ukraine, deadly clashes between protesters and the security forces in the Ukrainian capital Kyiv ended with the ousting of the elected President Viktor Yanukovich and the overthrow of the Ukrainian government. This was in response to President Yanukovich's sudden decision not to sign a political association and free trade agreement with the European Union (EU), instead choosing closer ties to Russia and the Eurasian Economic Union. The U.S. had a direct hand in this change of the Ukrainian Government and pushed towards greater corporate ties with Ukraine. Therefore, in a 'classic' American regime change move, Zelenskyy, a multi-millionaire comedian and the new president, was installed to oversee Ukraine.

The Special Operations Detachment "Azov", often known as Azov Battalion, Azov Regiment, or Azov Detachment, is a Ukrainian National Guard regiment, based in Mariupol in the Azov Sea coastal region. Its origins date back to World War II when certain right-wing factions within Ukraine formed 'Nazi' Battalions and joined the Germans to fight Russia. The Azov Battalion saw its first combat experience recapturing Mariupol from pro-Russian separatists' forces in June 2014. The unit was founded in May 2014 as a volunteer paramilitary militia under the command of Andriy Biletsky to fight pro-Russian forces in the Donbas War, and was formally incorporated into the National Guard on 11 November 2014. The group has drawn controversy over its early and allegedly continuing association with both far-right groups and neo-Nazi ideology; its use of controversial symbols linked to Nazism, and allegations that members of the group have participated in torture and war crimes. The Ukrainian Azov 'Nazi' Battalion who wear the Waffen-SS insignia on their tunics was heavily involved in the battle for Donetsk. During the years up and to January 2022, over 14,000 Donetsk civilians were killed by long range rockets and shelling from Ukraine.

In 2014, after the aftermath of the Maiden Revolution, the Minsk Agreements were drawn up by the Trilateral Contact Group on Ukraine, consisting of Ukraine, Russia, and the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe (OSCE), with mediation by the leaders of France and Germany in the so-called Normandy Format. After extensive talks in Minsk, Belarus, the agreement was signed on 5 September 2014 by representatives of the Trilateral Contact Group and, without recognition of their status, by the then-leaders of the self-proclaimed Donetsk People's Republic (DPR) and Luhansk People's Republic (LPR) in East Ukraine. This agreement followed multiple previous attempts to stop the fighting in the region and aimed to implement an immediate ceasefire. The Minsk I agreement failed to stop fighting, and was thus followed with a revised and updated agreement, Minsk II, which was signed on 12 February 2015.

The Minsk II Agreement was simply a western ploy (admitted in public by Angela Merkel, the former chancellor of Germany) to enable Ukraine to rearm and the Ukrainian shelling of Donetsk and Lugansk regions continued. The U.S. was involved in arming Ukraine with heavy weapons to continue the fighting against Donetsk and led the western media in a world-wide news blackout of the Russian press and media on the internet. Amid rising tensions between Russia and Ukraine in early 2022, on February 21, President Vladimir Putin announced that Moscow was recognising the sovereignty of the Donetsk and Lugansk People's Republics. Russia signed agreements on friendship, cooperation and mutual assistance with their leaders. Moscow recognised the Donbass republics in accordance with the DPR and LPR constitutions within the boundaries of the Donetsk and Lugansk regions as of the beginning of 2014. Russian President Putin announced on February 24 that in response to a request by the heads of the Donbass republics for assistance he had decided to carry out a special military operation in Ukraine. The Russian leader stressed that Moscow had no plans of occupying Ukrainian territories, noting that the operation was aimed at the denazification and demilitarization of Ukraine. Following that decision, on 22 February 2022, Russian president Vladimir Putin declared that the Minsk agreements "no longer existed", and that Ukraine, not Russia, was to blame for their collapse. Russia then invaded Ukraine on 24 February 2022 to remove the Ukrainian Azov 'Nazi' Battalion from Mariupol in the Azov Sea coastal region and to secure the independent states of the Donetsk People's Republic (DPR) and Luhansk People's Republic (LPR).

Make no mistake, the real long-term objective of the United States of America is to overthrow the Russian Government and to further expand their global military power and hegemony, in particular their corporate company expansion. Therefore the U.S. will use all powers at its disposal, including arming Ukraine against Russia, sanctions, embargoes and plain piracy of Russian ships on the high seas, as part of its strategy. Regime change in Russia is the ultimate goal and the U.S. hypocrisy of blaming Russia in the war with Ukraine for causing civilian deaths is breath-taking. War is a violent business and the U.S. and the UK have caused millions of civilian deaths during the reign of their empires in their goals to possess new resources and to assimilate and control the populations of other countries. As the world's populations continue to expand and converge, each seeking more and more resources, especially water, this will continue to lead to war.

The government of the United States of America has consistently opposed the International Criminal Court that could hold U.S. military and political leaders to a global standard of justice. When other countries refused to agree to such an unequal standard of justice, the U.S. campaigned to weaken and undermine the court and those countries. The U.S. has no intention of joining the ICC, due to its concern about possible charges against U.S. nationals. In 2020, the U.S. began a campaign of sanctioning individuals of the International Criminal Court, in particular the prosecutor Fatou Bensouda a Gambian attorney who was attempting to investigate the alleged US war crimes in Afghanistan. ICC's head of Jurisdiction, Complementary, and Cooperation Division Phakiso Mochochoko was also blacklisted for "having materially assisted" the prosecutor.

A new multi-polar order is rising and made up of Brazil, Russia, India, China, and South Africa. Countries that have applied for membership include, Algeria, Argentina, Bahrain, Egypt, Iran and Indonesia. BRICS, as they are known, seeks to trade in their own currencies and to bypass the financial world hegemony of the American $dollar, which is the reserve currency of the world. This new multi-polar financial system will, given time, seek to setup its own international money electronic transfer scheme; an alternative to the Swift system. The association of BRICS will eventually control 2/3rds of the world trade and potentially weaken the economies of the west, including America, Europe and the United Kingdom. The convergence of the human race will continue as each country and now continents, seek more and more resources to sustain their ever-growing populations. In the future, and given time, a World War is inevitable.

In 96 AD a Hebrew (Jew) named John, whilst a prisoner in a Roman prison at Patmos, wrote 'The Book of Revelation' after claiming he had received a vision from heaven. The book was intended to be distributed amongst the Christian Churches within the seven important cities in Asia Minor: Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamum, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea. His writings offered the Christians, under Roman dominance, hope and a promise that their persecution would end with the destruction of the Roman Empire. Just like Moses (the Israelite deliverer from Egypt who wrote down the 10 commandments), Abraham from Ur, in Babylonia (father of the Israelite nation), Yeshua (reputed to be the son of God), Joseph (the Israelite seer), Joseph Smith (the Mormon) and many other prophets, John claimed to be guided by God. His 'Book of Revelation' is interpreted in many different ways and some argue that it is relative to the past whilst others, claim the future. The end of days (Armageddon) is thought to have already happened and yet some believe it is yet to happen. All agree, that war is caused by the imbedded aggression of the beast in human nature.

History has shown, that a country's answer to avoiding financial ruin is to war against its neighbour for resources. The American military machine controls the American Republican and the Democrat political parties. It pushes NATO through its assimilated territories, which amongst others, include Europe, the United Kingdom and Canada to move ever forward to assimilate new countries to its command. Its only answer to the threat of its own financial ruin and disintegration, even civil war, is to move forward. Its corporate financial hegemony ambitions exist to control all the resources of the world under the thin disguise of its perceived democratic order which is backed up by over 800 American military bases, spread throughout the world. Like the fall of the Assyrian Empire, the U.S. and the world faces a possible catastrophe of biblical proportions.

February 2024 - The U.S. is arming Israel and providing a military umbrella to deter retaliatory attacks from Lebanon, Syria, Iraq and Iran. Under this umbrella, the Israelis are killing thousands of Palestinians (27,000 so far since October 2023) and driving them from the Gaza Strip and the West Bank. This is not an isolated case as the western world for some 75 years has stood by and condoned the Israelis gradually taking over all the Palestinian lands and killing thousands of Palestinians in the process. Under 'International Law' and 'Israeli Law' this occupation has been declared illegal and a form of genocide. The U.S. military is based in Syria, Iraq, and other Middle East countries despite the U.S. being told to leave by those countries. This is a direct breach of those countries' sovereignty and a breach of International Law.

There is no doubt that the U.S. requires an excuse to attack Iran and regain a foothold in that country to re-establish its corporate ambitions. These were halted in 1979 when Mohammad Reza Pahlavi also known as Mohammad Reza Shah, the last Shah (King) of Iran was overthrown by the Iranian Revolution on 11

February 1979 and fled Iran along with his American corporate friends. On the world stage, Israel is promoting the idea that the United States of America is weak and should strike Iran and its nuclear facilities; claiming that the Iranians are only a few months away from developing a nuclear weapon which could be used against Israel.

The forces of a mighty coalition are now rising and like the Assyrian Empire, the Empire of the United States is about to fall. Given time, perhaps 20 years, the fall will be a financial one, a great reckoning, but it remains to be seen if the United States of America will raise a 'false flag' and commence a world war by striking Iran.